

In this worksheet, we'll be giving you some ideas as to where you can use this technique. In addition, we'll try out some dialogue templates to use in mid-conversation. Shall we begin?

Places To Fake It

- At Home
- In A Public Park
- In A Coffee Shop
- In the Lobby Of A Movie Theatre
- In The Student Lounge
- At The Bus Stop
- Walking Down The Street
- In A Shopping Center
- In A Restaurant

Now that we've got you thinking, see if you can come up with some places of your own. The next part of this worksheet will focus on the actual conversation you're going to be having with your imaginary friend.

Example Starter Questions

- Hey(Friend Name), how's it going?
- Where did you go last weekend, what did you do?
- Have you heard the recent news?
- Is there anything special you're working on right now?
- Why are we always going to eat at Italian restaurants?
- Did you watch the latest episode of _____
- Can you get me a copy of _____ from the library?
- Why is your music only have one artist in it?

Side Note: Conversations aren't one-sided so make it a back-and-forth scenario. Using this technique will make sure that you're quick on your feet and ready to respond to anything. Either side can use these questions to get the ball rolling!

There are tons of conversation starters out there, but be sure to use the right one based on your knowledge of the language. See if you can have a full-fledged conversation using either one of the examples above or by creating your own. Let us know what you come up with!
